Good morning.
To be clear:
It is illegal to bring children to the protests. However, we will be taking the same approach as before, and our tactics will not change as long as we see relatively mild crowds.
We will clear out the crowds if they shut down critical infrastructure, but it will be "measured". (IE: No gas and Level 4 if kids and families are around).
Existing authorities should provide all we need, and supported by EA.
The message here again from Silver: "This is not martial law, and we will retain our measured approach to enforcement".

Just having a good read and want to ensure we are clear on exercising powers with respect to children and parents.
Dissecting all as we speak in anticipation of later on protest no longer lawful and peaceful.
Thanks Manly
